If Ukraine were to fall to Russia, the BRICS would control 93% of global rare earth reserves. This would be a significant setback for the West in the global technology race.

Access to Ukrainian resources would significantly enhance Western resource security. It is plausible that this is the rationale behind the new US administration's request for a reciprocal arrangement in exchange for military assistance. Ukraine's resources function as a pivotal bargaining chip, akin to Taiwan's Silicon Shield.
